PARK NAMING

From: Dennis Day
To: Jeff Jones
Date: 8/18/2006 3:13:54 PM
Subject: Re: Panhandle Park

Hello Jeff:

Our Department has a naming policy on City Parks. I could not find the exact policy but it goes something like this: Parks next to schools are typically named after the adjacent school. Community Parks can also be named after streets that surround the park. Parks can be named after prominent Citizens of Sacramento and other famous people, but only after they have died and their background is thoroughly evaluated. Parks are named after specific individuals such as Manual J. Barandas Park. Parks are not usually named after the former property owner unless the land was donated to the City, such as William Land Park. Parks are not to be named after the subdivision. Parks in North Natomas have a naming theme, Parks on the east side of I-5 are to be named after trees and other plants native to the area. Parks on the west side of North Natomas shall be named after native birds and animals from the area.

Park names go through a formal approval process. The developer, staff or community can provide suggestions and input for park names. The Parks and Recreation Commission reviews and selects the park name and recommends it to City Council. The City Council has the final approval on the park name.

If your suggested name passes the above test we can propose the name when we go through the master planning and park naming process. The proposed park names that have been selected for the Panhandle are only a placeholder park name and may change during the formal approval process. If you would like to discuss it further, feel free to contact me.

Jeff,

The City has a park naming policy. I'll have to refer you to Dennis Day in our Landscape Architect Section to discuss your request. His e-mail is dday@cityofsacramento.org

Hi Barbara,

We are interested in re-naming one of the parks on the Krumenacher property to pay recognition to the Krumenacher family that has owned the ranch for approximately 100 years. The most northerly park in the Panhandle is the closest one to the old family homestead location and is currently referred to as Laurel Park. Would you be okay with us re-naming this park to Krumenacher Park?

Thanks,
Jeff
